The ANS Decommissioning, Decontamination, & Remediation (DD&R) Topical Decommissioning Meeting will be held in Denver, Colorado, USA, August 7-11, 2005. The DD&R meeting is an international gathering of approximately 300 technical professionals engaged in decommissioning and related disciplines such as waste management, legacy management, and long-term stewardship. The meeting will focus on lessons learned from site closure as well as worldwide government and commercial decommissioning experiences including the nearby Rocky Flats Environmental Technology Site. We will present details of technical advancements and regulatory changes in which decommissioning is performed worldwide.

Professional Development Workshop

“Developing a Site-Specific Approach for Sampling & Measurement to Satisfy Final Status Surveys Requirements for Release of all or a Portion of an Operating Site”

Sunday, August 7

Participants will work in small groups and will be asked to make key technical and management decisions necessary to implement a regulatory acceptable final status survey for release of a portion of a “hypothetical” site. The objective of the exercise is to learn ways in which different groups handle technical and regulatory uncertainties, technical and regulatory challenges, and how consensus must be reached in order to reach cost-effective, technically sound approaches to final status surveys. Participation is limited.

Technical Exhibit

A technical exhibit will be held all the meeting, bringing together exhibitors from a wide range of companies in the D&D industry and allowing meeting participants to learn about cutting-edge products and technologies that are directly applicable to their current projects.

Technical Tour

A half-day technical tour of Rocky Flats is planned for Thursday afternoon, August 11. Rocky Flats, a former nuclear weapons facility located approximately 16 miles Northwest of Denver, is a Department of Energy cleanup and closure site operated by Kaiser-Hill Company. The present Rocky Flats mission includes nuclear deactivation and decommissioning, waste management and shipment, special nuclear material removal, environmental cleanup, and closure. Tickets for the technical tour can be purchased in advance for $25. Attendance is limited so attendees will be assigned on a first-come, first-served basis.

Special Events

Welcome Reception

Sunday, August 7

The meeting will start with a welcome reception in the exhibit hall. One ticket to the welcome reception is included with the full meeting registration, the spouse registration, and the student registration fee. Additional tickets can be purchased at $40 each.

Luncheon

Monday, August 8

Immediately following the plenary session, there will be a lunch in the Grand Hyatt hotel with a guest speaker. One ticket to the lunch is included in the full meeting registration fee. Additional tickets can be purchased at $10 each.

Denver Art Museum

Wednesday, August 10

Join us for an evening of baseball and brats in Coors Field, home of the Rockies. The 76-acre ballpark stands in Denver’s lower downtown (“LoDo”) district and offers a spectacular view of the Rockies. Tickets for the game, including a picnic and a “rock pile” game ticket can be purchased in advance or on site at the registration desk for $20.

American gallery, a renowned collection of 17,000 of the finest examples of American Indian art. The Denver Art Museum is currently undergoing a $68 million expansion. The new building was designed by architect Daniel Libeskind, winner of the World Trade Center redesign project. The Denver Art Museum will be his first building in North America.
